This is terrible Hidden object game. Creators made use of popularity of genre to make easy money.

Everything is wrong:

- Stupid "story"
- Ugly comic
- Random positioned hidden objects to search for, cut from some existing graphics
- Lacking of good taste in every direction

This game is not worth even 50 cents. Interesting concepts but not executed well enough. This game is a shoot 'em up where you pilot a ship through levels while using various weapons and abilities to kill enemies, flip switches, etc. The controls are pretty good, not quite as tight as I might prefer but feels fine. The graphics are very simple and I don't care for the aesthetic much.

If you are really desperate for a new, cheap shoot 'em up to play you could give this a try but otherwise don't waste your time.. I am enjoying this game quite a bit at the moment. Affirming other reviews, this game is easy to learn and hard to master, I am still at the padawan level :)

I like the idea of a local multi player game, but think an online co-op would be an awesome update.

Thumbs up.

. Not nearly as good as the Edgar Allen Poe mystery. The puzzles didn't feel as connected, and the hidden objects were completely uninvolved with the story. In the EAP one, they felt meaningful to the story, and you would use objects found, to find other objects. it was cool. This one has you find a bunch of objects, and then seemingly unrelated, find one more object that was there the whole time -- you just couldn't click on it. The game was more complex, and the puzzles were obtuse -- I even was forced to use a walkthrough for a couple parts, as the hint system is insane. You have like thirty objects in your inventory, and the hint system demands you get a hint on one object....

I come down on it, because I really liked the first one, and hoped they would continue with that style. Maybe the next one will be better.. The missions are a bit short but it's a way to pass the time I guess.

I mostly like how the Freeze mission makes Gotham get a more, er, December-y look to it.. The game has an elegant simplicity that quickly draws you in and enough strategic depth to keep you playing for many hours. It's been my favorite go-to game for a quick fix gaming session for many months now. In fact, while I've purchased lots of other computer based card games over the years, I haven't enjoyed any of them as much as Spectromancer since the long-ago release of Microprose's Magic the Gathering. If you enjoy this type of strategy game and can have fun without the bells and whistles of state-of-the-art animations, elaborate sound effects or eye candy graphics, Spectromancer offers great value for your money.. I have the HTC vive and this game works perfectly.

Without a doubt the coolest smoothest, most realistic pinball experience other than actually playing a real machine. Actually, it is better in a way with the cool things happening around the machine while you're playing.

I jumped when a mars mechanical spider started to crawl up the machine!

Oh, and this game and exp packs are SOO much cheaper and take up SO much less space than real machines.

Get this game now. You will not regret it.

And you know I'm telling the truth with 70 ish games purchased and this is my first review.. Have played this German dlc love the new buildings and now cs control the game speed settings plus the Terminal Stations are cool need to add to the warehouse extra spaces so more products can be held there if you are doing france try to include G B to Northern France like you have done with Ireland.

Overall great DLC love playing it However new characters are required for the different regions
